How typical that this Italian girl would find a book like this! I gave it five stars because it really beats out any other pizza book I've seen. From the moment I received Thursday Night Pizza "Father Dominic's Favorite Pizza Recipes, I was putting on my Italian flag apron and getting out my pizza stones. Written by Father Dominic Garramone, O.S.B., of public television's "Breaking Bread" show, this monk certainly knows his way around the kitchen. After all, he's been in charge of making pizzas for his fellow monks for twenty years. Ask them, and they'll tell you that nobody makes pizza like Father Dom. Why Thursday, you ask? After all, isn't Friday night usually pizza night? Not at the Saint Bede Abbey in Peru, IL, because Friday is a fasting day year 'round. This makes Thursday nights at the abbey haustus night. Haustus is derived from the Latin hausere, meaning "to be filled."

And fill up these monks do on Thursdays, with relaxing community time and recreation, music, rousing games of Uno and Scrabble, lots of yummy snacks and drinks, and, of course, Father Dom's incredible pizzas. With this 115-page book of Father Dom's from Reedy Press (2010), we can be there on haustus night with the priests...well, sort of! I was a little skeptical at first. I mean, I already had my own versions of homemade pizza dough and sauce, and my family and I liked them just fine, thank you very much. But I was intrigued. And I love cookbooks. And to top it off, Father Dom seemed funny with a good sense of humor. And a paisan, to be sure! But deep down, I just knew my dough and sauce would win out over Father Dom's! Off to the confessional to confess the sin of pride...but first: time to make the dough!
